Public Administrations

• Have the task of satisfying the general interest,
• Guarantee that general interest is over any private interest,
• Are holders of a series of extended powers in relation to those of individuals or private entities.
Public Administrations

• Are subject to a set of limits and guarantees typical of the Rule of Law (submission to law, judicial control, patrimonial guarantees, etc)

• Are endowed with a set of economic resources whose management is subject to the budgetary, economic-financial, accounting, intervention and financial control regime established by the Law.
